

Tom Cruise's Character Les Grossman in the Movie Tropic Thunder Comes Alive, TV Spin Off - REEL: The Les is More Story

Adapted to a Television Series, REEL: The Les is More Story will Explore the High Powered Talent Mogul, the REAL Les Grossman

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, January 15, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The REAL Les Grossman and Executive Producer Robert Taleghany are excited to announce that currently in the pipeline - REEL: The Les is More Story spin-off TV Series is now being planned. The TV series is heavily inspired by Tom Cruise's portrayal of a petulant and pejorative loving movie producer Les Grossman in the 2008 hit movie, "Tropic Thunder" directed by Ben Stiller starring Stiller, Cruise, Jack Black, Robert Downey Jr., Matthew McConaughey and many more.

Tropic Thunder is a movie about a group of actors shooting a big-budget war movie who are forced to become the soldiers they are depicting by getting involved in a real life military action drug war in Thailand. In the movie, Tom Cruise plays Les Grossman, the overweight, profanities spewing and balding studio executive who is financing the film.

REEL: The Les is More Story spin-off TV Series is now being planned inspired by Tom Cruise's portrayal of a petulant and pejorative loving movie producer Les Grossman in the 2008 hit movie, "Tropic Thunder".

“Tom Cruise's character in Tropic Thunder, Les Grossman is simply brilliant”, said Grossman, Hollywood Talent Mogul and Producer of REEL: The Les is More Story.

Executive producer, Taleghany is organizing the finances while producer REAL Grossman is negotiating with the state of Nevada and Clark County to do the 2019 production in Las Vegas. Freddy Krepistmah of Freddy K Entertainment is the casting director and Ron Culbertson will be directing the score as an assistant director.

Over a decade after its release, Tropic Thunder's appeal has not, by any means gone down – if any, it has only escalated. At present, Etan G, a Jewish rapper with the moves is cast as Les Grossman. This episode of REEL: The Les is More Story rewinds back to the time when Les Grossman was a teen looking for a chance to get his big break and make a name for himself. It is the genesis of REAL Les Grossman and the historic element that will be present in the Pilot Episode. Some past examples about the REAL Grossman are: Being the only United States concert producer to put the bands The Who and Led Zeppelin on the same concert stage. Plus, the REAL Grossman co-created the band Tractor with Ron Culbertson, who then did the sound track for David Lynch's first film for AFI, The Grandmother.

The character is then molded gradually into what the REAL Les Grossman is in the movie Tropic Thunder, rocking Hollywood by being a high powered talent mogul. However, there is more along the line. The REAL Les Grossman (now transformed as an 18-year student of Kabbalah) will play Les Grossman's dad.

The lead female role was written with Jennette McCurdy in mind as Dottee Smythe, Grossman's mom (in her teenage years) along with television star Robert Leeshock in mind for the roll of Studio Head Ren Stickler. The REAL Les Grossman at the age of 21 years old, will be played by a new and upcoming Las Vegas actor who is known for his ear to ear grin. Pending starring rolls for Marco De Rango along with D. B. Sweeney are also in the works.

Another exciting highlight about the Pilot Episode is that Tom Cruise has an open invitation for a cameo role.

REEL: The Les is More Story, is an emerging seed - a new story is birthed and continued in the past and future story building, in true series fashion. In an evolution in itself, this action/comedy romp is a cleverly combination blend of fact and fiction. There is enough grit, drama, excitement and ridiculous antics to keep viewers hooked and wanting more.
