

Less than four weeks until the 3rd annual Network Centric Warfare conference in Italy

The 3rd annual Network Centric Warfare conference is returning to Rome in February this year.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, January 9, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The conference taking place on the 4th and 5th February this year will showcase how embracing Network Centric Warfare can allow for greater information sharing and streamlined decision-making, enhancing operational effectiveness, as robust and dynamic networks are now a crucial requirement for successful joint operations and essential to modern military capabilities.

The conference is open to an international host of military and industry professionals and the updates for the 2019 agenda include:

After the success of last year, SMi is delighted to welcome back Leonardo as Gold Sponsor of this year's conference, as well as Rajant who are also sponsoring. SMi is proud to have Bittium as brand-new sponsors of the 3rd Network Centric Warfare.

This year's event is set to host new countries including Germany, Denmark, Austria and Netherlands, who will provide their valuable insights and perspectives on NCW at the conference in February.

Delegates will have the exclusive opportunity to hear first-hand the latest updates on network-enabled capabilities and programmes, including an exclusive focus on Italy's progressing FORZA NEC Programme.

There is an interactive post-conference half-day workshop from Lieutenant General (Ret'd) Antonio Li Gobbi, Former Director of Operations, NATO HQ International Military Staff on "Network-Based C4I for Complex Operational Environments".

3rd Annual Network Centric Warfare Conference 2019

As the battlefield becomes increasingly asymmetric, and joint operations combining multiple military forces become commonplace, the need for effective command and control structures are more crucial than ever before. Network Centric Warfare is synonymous with C4I, as militaries seek to leverage robust information sharing systems to enhance connectivity of military assets and achieve information and decision-superiority.

With less than four weeks to go until the conference with two days of in-depth presentations and over 5 hours of dedicated networking, make sure to register today. Please visit: <http://www.netcentric-warfare.com/einpress>
