Amber Skjelset, Manager of the Scientology Information Center

“Curious visitors have learned what Scientologists believe, that the Church is an all-denominational religion and how Scientology offers practical tools that anyone can use in their lives to better understand the mind, spirit and life,” said Amber Skjelset, Manager of the Scientology Information Center.

History and architecture buffs can learn about the Clearwater Building's history, built in 1918, originally as the Bank of Clearwater. The historic features of the building include 30-foot ceilings with intricate dentil molding, 100 year-old marble floor, as well as other fascinating features.

Before leaving for the night, guests can choose from a number of complimentary educational materials to take with them.

For more information about the event or the Scientology Information Center please contact Amber Skjelset at (727) 467-6966 or email amber@cos.flag.org. The Center is open every day from 10am-10pm.
