JUPITER, FL, USA, January 11, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Though facial feminization surgery procedures have been around for decades, they have become more popular in recent years. More transgender women than ever before seek trained medical professionals to assist them in their journeys. Dr. Vartan Mardirossian and his team at Palm Beach Plastics, located in Jupiter FL, provides numerous facial feminization procedures each year and comes highly recommended.

The Differences between the Male and Female Face

Cisgender men and women have noticeable differences when it comes to their facial structure and features. For example, men tend to have broader foreheads, squarer foreheads, more prominent browbones, and thinner lips; women tend to have smaller features, higher cheekbones, and fuller lips. For transgender women in the process of realizing their true selves through hormone treatments and surgical procedures, facial feminization is an artform. Though anyone can learn to recognize the differences between the male and female face with time, there are very few people in the entire world who can successfully feminize once male features to create a beautiful and soft female face.
