When it comes to travel, nothing is more important than trust. Online scams and cybercrime are on the increase and are becoming increasingly hard to detect. The annual damage as a result of cybercrime is estimated to be in the region of 445 billion worldwide and travel and tourism is one of the most targeted industries. Tourism online crime is also one of the most distressing. The damage is emotional as well as financial. All too common are stories of clients arriving at a rental property found online to discover that it either doesn't exist or they booked through a copycat site.

Barclays bank undertook a recent survey which found that in 59% of cases, the victims were women and a third of the victims were in the age group of 30 to 44. So how do you avoid these online scams? Exceptional Villas have issued a couple of tips to keep you safe this summer.

- Ensure that the company you are booking with has a high trust score on a good review site such as trust pilot or trip advisor.
- Choose a company that personally inspects and vets all their properties.
- If it's too good to be true, it probably is.
- If in doubt, pay by credit card and ensure the company you are using has a secure online link.
- Check client testimonials.
- Use a company that has been in business for more than eight years.
- Ask for references.
- Check the company contact details. There should be a registered address and phone numbers visible on the site.
