3M Company Agrees to Pay $9.1 Million to Resolve Allegations

In a recent settlement agreement with the United States Department of Justice, 3M agreed to pay $9.1 million to resolve allegations that the company knowingly sold defective earplugs to the U.S. military. The case settlement was brought in a lawsuit filed under the qui tam, or whistleblower, provisions of the False Claims Act and is captioned United States ex rel. Moldex-Metric v. 3M

Company, Case No. 3:16-cv-1533-MBS (D.S.C.).

What is noteworthy about the lawsuit settlement is that the amount recovered only offsets government financial losses, not hearing loss damages suffered by U.S. Veterans. Furthermore, the case only settles allegations and does not state any liability.

Legal Help for Veterans Who Suffered Hearing Loss

Military personnel who served between 2003-2015, were issued 3M Dual-Ended Combat Arms™ Earplugs, Version 2, and now suffer from permanent hearing loss and/or tinnitus are invited to contact Mike Brandner Injury Attorneys for a free case evaluation. Mike Brandner wants U.S. veterans who were put at risk of injury to know that they have the right to seek compensation for permanent hearing loss. "Veterans of our United States armed forces shouldn't have had to worry about being put at risks of injury from a U.S. based manufacturer while defending our country. I want them to know that they do have the right to seek justice and seek compensation to help ensure their long-term quality of life is not overlooked. That is why my legal team is prepared to pursue individual compensation claims for those suffering hearing loss and other damages due to 3M's defective earplugs."
