

Storelocal Adds Nokē Smart Entry Access Control to Technology Suite

Keyless smart security platform enables customized access

IRVINE, CA, UNITED STATES, March 1, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Storelocal Corporation, the self-storage industry's premiere member-owned co-op, is pleased to offer owner members a keyless smart security platform. Integrated with Storelocal's Tenant™ technology, the Nokē Smart Entry™ system by Janus International™ enables customized access for self-storage owners and tenants.

"We are excited about enhancing our technology suite with the latest in sophisticated digital access," said Lance Wakins, Storelocal's chief executive officer. "Storage customers can now search, find, execute agreements and move in fully unattended."

This is a breakthrough for both operators - who can provide access to the right people when needed - as well as tenants, who gain added convenience and assurance”

Lance Watkins

Nokē Smart Entry™ connects all locks and unit controllers through a bluetooth, cloud-based digital-key system, allowing tenants anytime entry into a self-storage facility as well as individual units via monitored access points, all from a mobile device.

The benefits to facility owners and operators include not only the ability to create and monitor customized permissions for tenants and staff in real time, but to automate overlocking as well, potentially eliminating lock cutting.

"This is a breakthrough for both operators, who can provide access to the right people when needed, as well as tenants, who gain added convenience and assurance that their valuables are protected from unauthorized users," Watkins added.
