reputation in quantum-state resonance nutritional formulations, offering the highest quality, stearate-free nutritional products. Unique in the nutrition supplement space, QNL reviews every aspect of product development from ingredient sourcing and manufacturing through to finished product. The company's specifications of ingredient testing methods far surpass industry standards to include Thin Layer Chromatography, DNA and Photoluminescence that can detect irradiation and contaminants. NO suspect ingredients such as magnesium stearate, talcum powder, fillers, excipients, flow agents, artificial flavors or colors are ever found in their products.

QNL is one only a handful of supplement companies whose exclusive supplement manufacturer is USP Certified.

“As a leader in quantum-level nutritional products for more than three decades, we've built a stellar reputation for products that deliver on quality, purity and performance. Over the years we've had many requests by consumers and retailers alike to bring our products to the retail space, but we weren't in a position to successfully make that leap until now,” said Quantum Nutrition Labs Chief Executive Officer and Co-Founder Dr. Linda Forbes. “That's why we are thrilled to be at Expo West this year and to bring our world-class products to retail shelves for the first time and introduce a whole new consumer audience to our products.”
