Dunaway announced today the hire of Chris Vadala as its Corporate Development Executive, reaffirming its commitment to growing regionally in Texas.

AUSTIN, TX, USA, March 13, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Dunaway announced today the hire of Chris Vadala as its Corporate Development Executive, reaffirming its commitment to growing regionally in Texas.

Vadala, previously a Senior Vice President at Bury, Inc., brings more than 20 years of experience to the leadership team at Dunaway. He will participate in corporate strategy while leading all of its business development initiatives statewide.

"What attracted me about Dunaway, first, were their core values—specifically the integrity of the company's leadership, and the respect they show to their employees and clients," said Vadala, a Texas native who will office in Austin. "I also saw a company that relishes its history but is forward thinking. We have tremendous potential through our market sector diversification and acquisition opportunities, such as UDG, which we acquired in Austin last year."

For Dunaway's part, the fact that Ross Eubanks, Vice President of Dunaway, has known Vadala for years, was an important factor.

"Chris and I have been friends for over a decade and have discussed ways in which we could bring his proven leadership to Dunaway. Now it's a reality," said Eubanks. "That leadership is known throughout our industry, especially when it comes to his ethical professionalism and knowledge as it relates to both horizontal and vertical construction. We believe he will be a difference-maker for Dunaway, by helping us serve our existing clients and drive growth into new markets around the state.

"We also were impressed by the impact Chris made at Bury, and believe he was instrumental in the firm's success prior to its acquisition. His joining the Dunaway team is a promising addition, and we anticipate tremendous results through Chris's leadership."
