

Erin Sokalsky to be honored at 3/30 Lincoln Memorial Walk & Rally to Fight LE & LD

2019 LE&RN Impact Award to be presented to medi® USA employee and activist

NEW YORK, NY, USA, March 14, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The second annual DC Walk & Rally to Fight Lymphedema & Lymphatic Diseases will be held March 30 in Washington, D.C., and will honor Erin Sokalsky (ATC, PTA, CLT-LANA, WCC) Senior Clinical Education Manager, Lymphedema & Wound Care for medi USA, with the 2019 LE&RN Impact Award. This event promises to bring even more activists to the National Mall than last year's inaugural event. As last year, Academy Award-winning Actress and LE&RN Spokesperson Kathy Bates will address participants just before they make their way around the 2-mile route, beginning and ending on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

2019 LE&RN Impact Award Winner Erin Sokalsky with LE&RN President & CEO William Repicci

"It is a tradition at LE&RN to honor activists who have made a real difference for those living with lymphedema (LE) and lymphatic diseases (LD) at our LymphWalks," said William Repicci,

President & CEO of LE&RN. "It will be a proud moment for LE&RN when we recognize Erin Sokalsky of medi USA for her ongoing efforts to improve outcomes for the LE and LD communities. medi USA is a long-time supporter of LE&RN and its efforts to fight LE and LD, and a wonderful example of corporate citizenship. Erin's achievements reflect on medi USA's company values as well as Erin's personal commitment to the cause."

I am deeply honored to receive the 2019 LE&RN Impact Award which recognizes contributions in the fight against LE/LD."

Erin Sokalsky

"It is a great honor that Erin's endless lymphedema advocacy can be recognized," said Christopher Miles, (OTR/L, CLT, CWCA) Senior Manager, Clinical Services, medi USA. "Her passion for educating lymphedema clinicians, patients and community members never seems to end. She is not only a valued medi USA team member, but appreciated amongst the entire lymphedema community."

"I am deeply honored to receive the 2019 LE&RN Impact Award which recognizes contributions in the fight against LE/LD," said Erin Sokalsky when she learned of the upcoming award. "What a pleasure to be honored for doing something you love! I'll be in D.C., along with a group of my medi USA colleagues, to support LE&RN on Friday, March 29, for Lobby Day and the DC LymphWalk on Saturday. It has been a dream come true teaming up with Bill Repicci and everyone at LE&RN to help with the fight against LE/LD. The impact of LE&RN's work is seen not only in the U.S., but throughout the world. Like LE&RN, medi USA is a global company striving to improve the lives of those affected with LE/LD. Through innovative compression products, holistic treatment concepts, and most importantly, education, medi USA has become the world-wide leader in compression therapy. This allows us to partner with and support great organizations like LE&RN and help change the lives of the millions who struggle with these diseases on a daily basis.”

To sign up to walk in support of the 10 million Americans and 250 million worldwide who are battling this lymphedemic™, register at www.LymphWalk.org. Social media activists, use hashtag #DCLymphWalk.
