

VictimsSpeakDB.org is Now Closed; Future Research About Clergy Sex Abuse Will Be Published on the VictimsSpeakDB blog

Due to limited interest in statistical data about clergy sex abuse in the Catholic Church, VictimsSpeakDB closed its website on March 19 to focus on its blog.

SPRING VALLEY, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, March 26, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Due to limited interest in statistical data about clergy sex abuse in the Catholic Church, VictimsSpeakDB closed its website on March 19, 2019. It had been available online for more than two years. The website closed when the licenses to the site expired. However, G.R. Pafumi, founder of VictimsSpeakDb.org, plans to maintain the two SACCADAS (Survivor Accounts of Catholic Clergy Abuse, Denial, Accountability and Silence) databases, one covering the victims and the other covering clergy offenders. Mr. Pafumi will continue monitoring clergy abuse and report its results on the VictimsSpeakDB blog.

Confession at the Vatican

The Roman Catholic Church can no longer exert its moral authority because it has become an institution controlled by men who are intrinsically immoral. We are watching its demise in real time.”

G.R. Pafumi

Mr. Pafumi said, "While I enjoyed doing the research and posting its results on the VictimsSpeakDb website, I found little interest in the data. Legislators and victims' groups seem to be concentrating more on the personal aspects of abuse than a statistical analysis of it. I would think that legislators who are considering expanding the statute of limitation to report sex crimes against children would want to know how long it takes the average person to come forward and report a crime. This is not the case."

VictimsSpeakDb.org will make its updated data available to those in need. He can be reached at the VictimsSpeakDB blog website. A user only needs to make a query request or post a comment to any blog and Mr. Pafumi will reply. It is preferred for the user to leave his name and email address in a comment if he or she expects a timely reply. Mr. Pafumi also can be reached at VictimsSpeakDB@Outlook.com.

Victims and others interested in a chronology and history of sex abuse in the Catholic Church can purchase any of Mr. Pafumi's four books about this subject on Amazon.com. Through the end of March, all four books will be offered at a substantial discount. As of April 1, 2019, all of G.R.Pafumi's books will revert to their original list prices.
