been providing phone, internet, IPTV, and Smart Monitoring solutions since 2008. The company has come a long way since and has always set the tone for the way businesses and home users embrace customized solutions that fit their budget.

During a recent launch event, the spokesperson of the company said, "INNSYS is proud to be your choice when it comes to phone, internet, IPTV, and Smart Monitoring solutions. We aim to deliver the best service quality possible. For that, we provide multiple packages and more features you can shake a phone at. Switch to INNSYS solutions today and get unimaginable voice clarity and lightning speed internet at a great price."

Having more than one computer at home and downloading multiple videos, music, and funny clips at a time is commonplace. But, multitasking at that level can easily cause your home or office internet connection to lag. For home users, this can be the cause of much frustration, while for offices the stakes are significant. Keeping that in mind, it pays to have a fast internet connection that can keep up with the fast pace of an office environment and homes that are never offline.

On answering one of the questions the spokesperson for the company said, "First we started providing internet with DSL technology in the past and In 2011 Fiber-To-The-Node (FTTN) was first introduced in Canada and we were one of the first to join the community of Fiber Internet Providers. Back then we knew what an important breakthrough it was for communications, and we've never looked back. Currently INNSYS is working on Fiber-To-The-Home (FTTH) which allows the users to access the internet in super fast speeds. INNSYS is fully committed to providing our clients with unmatched quality at an affordable price. At INNSYS, we want to deliver smarter services and a superior experience to our valued customers."

With their commercial and residential phone services, INNSYS makes it easier for both businesses and private residents to choose a plan that suits their calling patterns. There's a reason why INNSYS is considered to be the leading providers of quality, reliable and affordable solutions in Ontario and Quebec.

He concluded by saying, "We consider ourselves fortunate to be serving our clientele in Ontario and Quebec.
