North Dallas experienced a huge rain and hail storm on Sunday, March 24th generating a great deal of damage to roofs in McKinney and Allen, TX.

Burton Hughes from New View Roofing says: "North Dallas seems to take a serious pounding every year or two. This particular storm was devastating to many homeowners who will now be looking at full roof replacement and total storm restoration of their residence."

Mr. Hughes added "We'll be acting as a hail storm restoration resource for homeowners who will prefer to hire a single contractor to handle roof, window, gutter, sky light and in some cases fence replacement. Replacement fences can then be stained and damaged paint on the home can be reapplied with fresh coats to ensure full restoration.

Of particular concern are roofs built using plastic venting. Many vents been compromised by hail stones leaving the attic vulnerable to rain water and costly internal damage.

Our crews are prepared for rapid deployment for roof inspections so that homeowners can identify potential problems and resolve them before damages get magnified.

Burton, New View Roofing and others set themselves apart as a resource for homeowners, attending to many properties with emergency "tarping" of vents and compromised roofing shingles immediately after the storm.

New View Roofing is a veteran-owned roofing company, with a BBB A+ rating and a GAF Master Elite Certification. Burton and New View serve the DFW metroplex providing full-scale residential and commercial roofing systems from his offices in McKinney, TX, Plano, TX, and The Colony, TX.
