Countrywide Search

Following a national audition, eight gifted opera singers from across the country have been preselected to perform during this evening fundraiser in support of young artists and Vancouver Opera. They'll compete live in front of six esteemed judges including Judith Forst, Leslie Dala, Jonathan Darlington, Kim Gaynor, Roberto Mauro, and J. Patrick Raftery. The contestants will be vying for cash prizes and the audience will be invited to cast their vote for audience choice.

"We have an incredible line-up of young singers ready to share their talents with VOX judges and audience," says Jonathan Darlington, Music Director Emeritus. "Many wonderful opera careers have been launched by taking part in musical competitions around the world. Our hope is this competition will assist in launching the career of an exemplary Canadian opera singer."

While the judges deliberate Canada's leading opera sensation Erin Wall, who is acclaimed for her musicality and versatility, will perform for the VOX audience.

"This new initiative is yet another way Vancouver Opera invests in young artists," says Kim Gaynor, Vancouver Opera General Director. "This is an exciting opportunity for these young performers to have their opera careers propelled to the next level. The cash prize could provide the winner with the opportunity to fund international auditions."

VOX is this season's unmissable event for everyone who is interested in discovering great new voices and experiencing the excitement of a live competition. VOX contestants hail from across Canada with:

•IIenors Lampron-Dandonneau (Quebec), Ryan Nauta (Quebec)

•Baritone Zainen Suzuki (Quebec, originally from Burnaby, B.C.)

•Bopranos Ana Toumine (Quebec), Shantelle Przybylo (Ontario), Elizabeth Harris (British Columbia)

•Mezzos Amanda Perera (Ontario), Sarah Bissonnette (Alberta).

The evening begins with a 5:30 p.m. cocktail reception followed by the live competition at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for VOX are $65 and available online or by phone 604-683-0222.

VOX fundraising gala dinner

Following the competition a special fundraising gala dinner will take place on the iconic stage at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre. Surrounded by the magnificent sets for Gounod's Faust, gala dinner guests will enjoy an unforgettable gala dinner prepared by the event's official hospitality partner, the Four Seasons Hotel Vancouver. The dinner will be accompanied by wines from Mission Hill Family Estate.

Dessert at the special gala dinner will be a unique creation prepared by renowned pastry chef and judge on The Great Canadian Baking Show, Bruno Feldeisen, along with his special guest baker, Andrei Godoroja, the show's 2018 winner. The evening will also feature a live auction and special performances by artists from the Yulanda M. Faris Young Artists Program.
