

Lattice80 and CoinFabric Partner Up To Empower The Blockchain Economy

LONDON, UK, April 11, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- LATTICE80, the world's largest FinTech hub, has announced the commencement of a partnership with the global management consultancy, CoinFabric, which is positioned to usher the Blockchain industry into a new era of widespread exposure and adoption.

The agreement comes on the back of the growing need to venture into developing markets, which led to the coalition agreement between two of the industry's leading organizations. Both organizations are poised to benefit from the vast experience and valuable expertise of their partner, in an effort to solidify their stature and further ensure sustained growth.

CoinFabric, which was founded in 2015, is a global management consultancy, and an industry reference in the field of Blockchain and cryptocurrency when it comes to product development and go-to-market strategies. The company prides itself in empowering developers, organizations, institutions and governments to adopt and integrate Blockchain technology into their supply or value chains through their expanding consulting division.

Having worked with more than 60 Blockchain and cryptocurrency companies since inception in 2015, and playing an instrumental part in managing one of the biggest tokenized fundraising events in the industry - Dragon Coin having raised $320m in 2018 - CoinFabric's experience in the space became a driver to establish a healthier Blockchain Economy worldwide.

As the hallmark of financial technology expertise, LATTICE80 serves more than 11,000 crypto startups and 200,000 professionals in its database. The company expects to pour in their extensive advanced financial technological expertise that spans across the United Kingdom, Europe, and Asia. In return, this partnership is expected to increase the global footprint for LATTICE80's groups of companies through intensive Research and Development and Integrated Services.

Combined, the newly formed partnership boasts far-reaching outreach across the globe throughout the United Kingdom, Asia, Europe, Africa, Australia and the United States of America. The venture is expected to contribute to the culmination of a progressive and competitive Blockchain landscape that fuels more development and innovation in the financial technology sector.

Joe Seunghyun Cho, CEO of Lattice80, was ecstatic over the announcement. He stated: "The announcement of this venture is a step towards a better, healthier future of the Blockchain technology. Lattice80 is enthralled to join hands with one of the leading global consultancies with a formidable track record. We are determined to grow as a company, and industry as a whole and a partnership with CoinFabric is a testament to our commitment to our members.”

CoinFabric is in unison with their new partners, labeling the alliance as a move towards a more blockchain-and-crypto-driven future.

Dean Cannell, CEO of CoinFabric said:

“We firmly believe Blockchain technology and cryptocurrency are here to stay, and we are pleased to collaborate with industry leaders who think alike. We are determined to ensure both parties benefit from this exchange of invaluable expertise and experience – working together toward innovation and development in the realm of Blockchain and Fintech.”
