team and build on the company's success offering truly customer-centric Microsoft Dynamics solutions to the distribution industry and the Microsoft independent software vendor community."

Before joining ENAVATE, Sean most recently served as managing director of two businesses for IT services management company The Hackett Group. He previously led their Finance Transformation and Enterprise Performance Management consulting practices, along with their sales and delivery efforts in several regional positions.

"Customers will enjoy the fresh perspective that Sean will bring when discussing the business solutions that they need to advance their business," said ENAVATE CEO Thomas Ajspur. "Thinking outside the box is the only way distributors and Independent Software Vendors can differentiate in today's competitive environment, and Sean is no stranger to that."
