

Sword GRC to host Risk Workshop led by the 'Father of GRC' Michael Rasmussen

Renowned GRC pundit runs highly prestigious Risk event in London

MAIDENHEAD, BERKS, UK, April 23, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Sword GRC, a supplier of specialist risk, compliance and governance solutions, is to host a Risk Workshop on 12 June, in London.

The event, 'Risk Management by Design' is to be led by renowned GRC pundit Michael Rasmussen and will provide delegates with a blueprint for implementing a top down, bottom up approach to enterprise risk management. The day long workshop will encompass defining a high level risk strategy through to effective risk-based policy management in the context of business operations and processes.

An enterprise-wide Single View of Risk supports a risk-based approach to decision making processes, ensuring that organizations understand their exposure to risk ”

Keith Ricketts, Vice President of Global Marketing, Sword GRC

To be held at the stunning Dorchester Hotel on London's Park Lane, the Workshop will include:

- Risk Management Strategy – in the context of business performance, strategy, objectives, corporate culture and values.
- Risk Management Processes – how to design processes to fit with the rhythm of the business
- Risk Management Information Architecture – to provide a 360° situational awareness of risk to support an overall view of risk to the business
- Risk Management Technology Architecture – to pull together distributed risk management roles and integrate risk into the culture and operations of the business

Michael Rasmussen said: “Siloed approaches to risk management mean that organizations are often unable to see the bigger picture and interconnectedness of risk. However, by centralizing risk an organization may reduce risk management to a one-size fits all model that fails to adequately manage and monitor risk. An effective and agile risk management function is collaborative and federated across departments to pull together disparate risk information from different operations to provide meaningful information for decision makers including the Board and senior management, GRC professionals, and the line of business managers.

Keith Ricketts, Vice President of Global Marketing at Sword GRC said; "In today's increasingly complex business environment with stringent industry regulations, globalization and international operations that include extended supply chains, more than ever, organizations can benefit from applying risk to every aspect of their business. An enterprise-wide Single View of Risk supports a risk-based approach to decision making processes, ensuring that organizations understand their exposure to risk and are able to fully take advantage of opportunities and so gain competitive advantage."
