

Scrambler Therapy® - Scientific article with the analysis of 3432 cases of chronic neuropathic and oncological pain

ROME, ITALY, April 26, 2019
/EINPresswire.com/ -- The scientific journal "Integrative Cancer Therapies" recently published the scientific article titled "Inside the Scrambler Therapy, a non-invasive treatment of chronic neuropathic and cancer pain. From the Gate Control Theory to the active principle of information. "

This indexed article studies the effects of Scrambler Therapy® on a total of 3432 cases of chronic neuropathic and oncologic pain. The article examines the Scrambler Therapy® theory, method, technology and bias effects in clinical trials and how to minimize them.

This article is especially useful for:

- Health care authorities that have to assess the specific and unique characteristics of the device.
- Health-care insurance companies considering to add the treatment in the cost exemption programs for patients.
- Independent clinical researchers who wish to conduct methodologically correct studies with minimal bias.
- Physicians who want to make the best use of Scrambler Therapy®
