TAMPA, FLORIDA, US, May 2, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A ribbon-cutting ceremony took place on Monday, April 29th, to unveil an arresting, multi-faced mural at Rowlett Park Racquetball Courts in Sulphur Springs. The mural celebrates human rights. The idea behind the mural came from the late President of the Florida chapter of United for Human Rights, Gracia Bennish. Two years before her passing, she proposed the mural, representing human rights and fair housing to Patricia Newton, the Human Rights Investigation Supervisor for the City of Tampa. Ms. Newton loved the idea, and the organizations worked together to make it reality.

In honor of 50 years of fair housing, Cristian Vargas of UHR's Florida Chapter joined Patricia Newton, the HR Investigation Supervisor, Tampa at the dedication of the "In and Out" mural at a Ribbon Cutting Ceremony in Sulphur Springs.

The Executive Director of United for Human Rights Florida Chapter, Cristian Vargas, explained how Gracia and Patricia envisioned the mural to promote and safeguard human rights for all residents of Tampa. "This mural represents more than just art. It's the life and culture of this community," said Mr. Vargas at the ceremony.
