HONGKONG, HONGKONG,
HONGKONG, May 5, 2019
/EINPresswire.com/ -- April 29, 2019 - Several noteworthy blockchain and cryptocurrency events have recently concluded in Asia, including large conventions such as Blockchain Life and K.E.Y Platform 2019.

The former was hosted in Singapore and saw several attendees of note, including Roger Ver (CEO - Bitcoin.com) and Sergei Khitrov (Founder of Listing.Help and Jets Capital). Held at the Marina Bay Sands Convention Center, the venue saw the attendance of more than 3000+ blockchain and cryptocurrency professionals and industry leaders. BitForex, the world's leading cryptocurrency exchange, was also present at the event, giving name by way of sponsorship to the official afterparty.

The other main event, K.E.Y Platform 2019 is a highly influential technology and finance industry summit held in Seoul, South Korea and hosted by Money Today, Korea's largest financial media group. Main topics up for discussion at this prestigious event were focussed on "new markets" — future development trends, artificial intelligence, trade wars, Brexit, as well as blockchain. Although not strictly a blockchain related event, Garrett Jin, Founder and CEO of BitForex was present.

As the only member of the cryptocurrency exchange industry present at the event, Garrett served as official blockchain and crypto spokesperson, sharing his views, visions, and expertise at a gathering which was attended by key players in the world of politics and finance in South Korea and Asia — including Lee Nak-yeon, current Prime Minister of South Korea.

Here, Garrett hosted a panel dedicated to the role of cryptocurrency exchanges, not just as a place to exchange tokens, but as a full-scale solution for digital currency deployment, and how this could play a pivotal role in the near future when considered as a new market for South Korea and beyond.
