

French and German Air Force to present keynote briefings at Military Flight Training 2019

SMi reports: The French and German Air Force will be presenting ahead of the pursuit of a new sixth-generation air combat system

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, May 28, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- It has been announced that the French Air Force have formed a joint venture with Germany to begin a study for a sixth-generation air combat system due in 2021. This study called the Future Combat Air System (FCAS) will address the need for a new, game changing technology to stay ahead of future threats by bringing new capabilities such as overhauling their pilot training system, more live-virtual-constructive training, and much more.

With this in mind, SMi's 8th annual Military Flight Training conference taking place in London on the 9th and 10th October 2019, will have the French and German Air Force presenting keynote briefings on day one of the event:

Colonel Julien Moreau, Commanding Officer, Flying Education and Training Command, French Air Force will present 'Creating a Dynamic and Comprehensive Approach to French Military Aviation Training':

- Preparing future pilots for high operational tendencies as the FAF commits to multiple dynamic missions worldwide
- Creating a holistic and efficient approach to pilot training from phase 1 to advanced flight training
- New processes and methods aimed at enhancing pilot preparedness in each aviation domain
- Building strategies for pilot retention, reducing attrition

Colonel Georg von Harling, Commander of the Technical Training Centre, German Air Force will present 'Developing Operational Readiness and Effectiveness of German Forces through Dynamic Technical Training':

- The Luftwaffe Technical Training Centre's contribution to Bundeswehr air operational capacities

The poster for the Military Flight Training 2019 conference features a dark blue fighter jet in flight against a green background. The text is prominently displayed in white and red. At the top, it says 'SMi Group presents the 8th Annual...' followed by the SMi logo. The main title 'MILITARY FLIGHT TRAINING 2019' is in large, bold, white letters with a red outline. Below that, the dates '9 - 10 OCTOBER' and location 'LONDON, UK' are also in white with a red outline. At the bottom, the website 'www.militaryflight-training.com' is listed in white on a red background. The overall design is professional and military-themed.
