Growth in the historic period resulted from globalization, technological developments, companies outsourcing back end operations to low cost economies and increased mergers and acquisitions (M&A). Factors that negatively affected growth in the historic period were regulatory challenges, government regulations, skilled workforce shortages and scandals in the accounting industry.

Going forward, faster economic growth, transitions in financial reporting standards and regulatory reforms will drive growth. Factors that could hinder the growth of this market in the future include increasing penetration of DIY design tools, skilled workforce shortages, rising costs and decreasing margins, and reductions in free trade.

The professional services market consists of the sales of professional services and related goods by entities (organizations, sole traders and partnerships) that offer services that provide support to businesses of all sizes, in all industries, and to individuals and institutions, in processes where human capital is the major input. Professional services establishments make available the knowledge and skills of their employees, often on an assignment basis, where an individual or team is responsible for the delivery of services to the client.

The professional services market is a broad market, which comprises several occupations, which provide support to businesses of all sizes and in all industries. The business entities, which are engaged in providing professional services, are generally referred to as professional services organizations (PSOs) or professional services firms (PSFs).
