Manufactured from non-toxic, pharmaceutical grade glass, the outside of the bottle is coated with heat-sensitive color changing silicone. If the temperature of the milk is too high, the bottle changes color. Then as the contents cool, the bottle changes back to its original color. The silicone coating also works as a safeguard against breakage or shattering

Soft to the touch, the bottle is easy to grip and hold. Its curved shape allows for feeding in the semi-upright position, helping prevent ear infections in newborns. The food-grade silicone nipple also has an anti-colic vent, to prevent air bubble formation.

The Heat Sensitive Silicone Baby Feeding Bottle has rapidly become very much in demand from parents of newborns, and it's also proving to be a popular gift item.

The company is currently offering a time-limited giveaway event. Randomly selected Instagram followers will receive the LILLADUA Waterproof Silicone Bib With Pocket, for free!
