

The Differences between Cosmetic and Plastic Surgery, explained by plastic & reconstructive surgeon Tansar Mir, MD

Plastic surgery and cosmetic surgery are not the same thing, and they have different purposes. In a new article, surgeon Dr. Tansar N. Mir explains.

NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, June 10, 2019

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Cosmetic surgeries and plastic surgeries are not the same. If you have carried the perception that the terms 'plastic surgery' and 'cosmetic surgery' could be used interchangeably, then you aren't alone. A huge number of people foster the perception that plastic surgery is the same as cosmetic surgery. This is because a huge number of plastic surgeons perform cosmetic surgery as well. Knowing this, both the descriptions are confusing and result in people misinterpreting the two.

plastic surgery is linked with facilitating the reconstruction of the body and facial defects that happen because of birth disorders, a disease, trauma, or burns.”

Cosmetic surgeries and plastic surgeries might be closely related to each other, but they are miles apart when it comes to differences. Here we look at some of the differences between plastic surgery and cosmetic surgery.

Plastic Surgery and Cosmetic Surgery Don't Have the Same Purpose. While both cosmetic and plastic surgery is focused on enhancing a patient's body, the philosophies behind both these methods are quite different in nature. The procedures, principles, and techniques for cosmetic surgery are focused on enhancing the appearance of a person. Cosmetic surgery is purely linked with improving the overall aesthetics, symmetry, and proportions of a person's figure and appearance. Cosmetic surgery is host to experts and doctors from numerous fields, including plastic surgeons. The different treatments for cosmetic surgery procedures include:

- * Facial Contouring: This includes chin and cheek enhancement with rhinoplasty
- * Breast Enhancement: Linked with increasing the overall aesthetics of your breast. Done through a lift, reduction, or augmentation.
- * Body Contouring: Includes weight loss and treatment options such as tummy tuck, gynecomastia treatment, and liposuction.

* Facial Rejuvenation: Facelift, eyelid lift, brow lift, and neck lift

* Skin Rejuvenation: Includes skin treatment methods such as Botox, laser resurfacing, and filler treatments.

While cosmetic surgery includes the techniques and treatments mentioned above, plastic surgery is linked with facilitating the reconstruction of the body and facial defects that happen because of birth disorders, a disease, trauma, or burns. Plastic surgery is believed to be a reconstructive treatment option and is meant for correcting the dysfunctional areas within your body.

Many of the plastic surgeons out there go through an extensive training session for cosmetic surgery, which helps them in catering their services according to the demands of the visitor. Quite recently, the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons renamed itself to the American Society of Plastic Surgeons, which helped many believe that plastic surgery and reconstructive surgery is pretty much the same thing.

The different examples that we see around plastic procedures include:

- * Reconstruction of the breast
- * Burn repair surgery
- * Lower extremity reconstruction
- * Scar revision surgery
- * Hand surgery

Professionals that start working as plastic surgeons follow a defined route to their career, which includes going through a five-year residency program, followed by a specific residency program for plastic surgeons. The training helps them with presenting their offerings to patients who require plastic surgeries.
