From homeowners who know exactly what type of look they are going for in their front or backyard to business owners who could use some suggestions and assistance, the friendly and experienced team from J's Custom Landscaping is happy to assist.

“Our design process puts our team's years of expertise and extensive material and plant knowledge at your fingertips with an on-site consultation that is used to create something that perfectly suits your needs,” the spokesperson noted, adding that whether clients have a larger or more complex idea, or they want to split their project into a few phases, the company's designer can create a comprehensive plan.

This dedication to clients goes back to the very beginning, when Jay Hofer started J's Custom Landscaping along with his father. The Hofers have two key goals in mind: to listen to their clients and give them exactly what they want, and to run a company where employees love to work.

“For the entire J’s Custom Landscaping team, digging in the dirt isn’t just a way to make money, it’s a way to connect with people,” the spokesperson said.
