LONDON, GREATER LONDON, UK, June 12, 2019

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The global market for natural gas distribution is expected to reach a value of nearly above $870 billion by 2021, having grown at an annual rate of above 4% since 2018.

The growth in the natural gas distribution market is due to increase in demand for natural gas from households and power generation companies around the world, which use natural gas for domestic and commercial purposes.

However, the market for natural gas distribution is expected to face certain restraints from several factors such as rise in debts, electricity transmission and distribution losses.

The natural gas distribution market consists of sales of natural gas by entities (organizations, sole traders and partnerships) that operate gas distribution systems (e.g., mains, meters) including gas marketers that buy gas from the well and sell it to a distribution system, gas brokers or agents that arrange the sale of gas over gas distribution systems operated by others and establishments that transmit and distribute gas to final consumers.
