

British Army, US Air Force and Navy Command Headquarters to present at the Defence Safety Conference

SMi Reports: Three senior leaders to join the Defence Safety line-up in London this October.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, June 18, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The second annual Defence Safety conference, returning to London on 7th – 8th October, will feature briefings from across the air, land and maritime domain, as well as from defence leaders, to industry, to policy makers. The conference will also identify good practice to be learned from and inform the views of those who procure, provide and operate Defence equipment and services.

Latest speakers to be added to the 2019 agenda include:

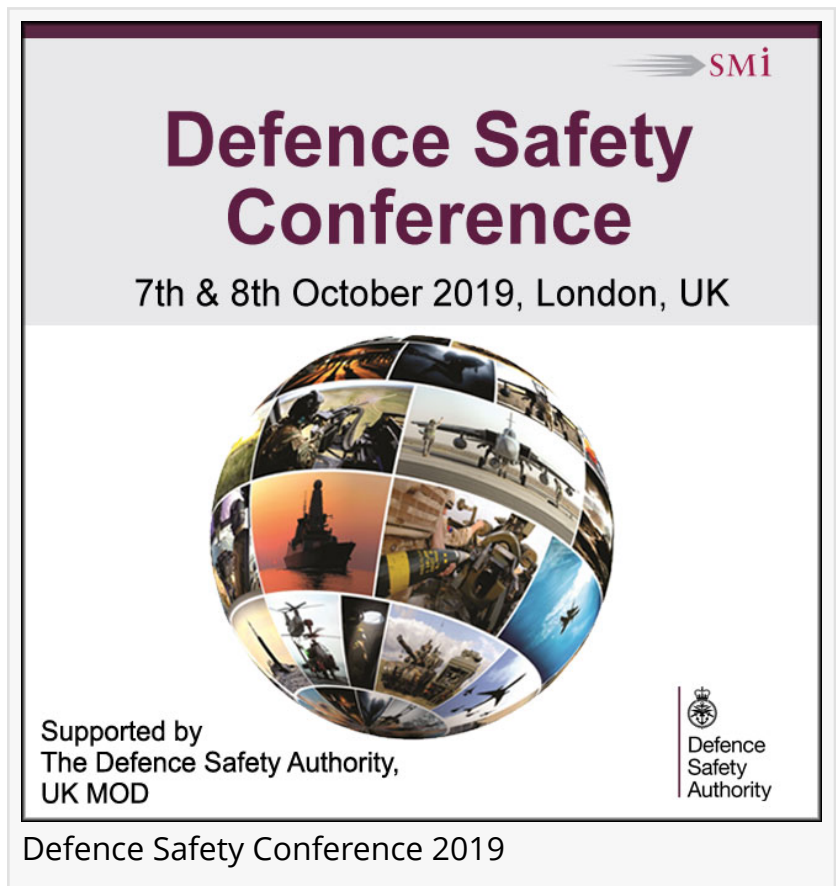

1. Lieutenant General Christopher Tickell CBE, Deputy Chief of General Staff, British Army presenting 'The Army's Approach to the Safety Challenge is Through Effective Risk Management'

2. Major General John T. Rauch Jr, Air Force Chief of Safety Commander, US Air Force presenting 'The Air Force Safety Centre: Delivering Maximum Air Effect Whilst Optimising Safety'

3. Rear Admiral Martin Connell, Assistant Chief of Naval Staff, Aviation, Amphibious Capability and Carriers, Navy Command Headquarters presenting 'Aviation Safety Considerations for the Royal Navy's Fleet Air Army'

The event brochure is now available to download online at: <http://www.defencesafety.com/einpr>

As the only event dedicated to Defence Safety, this conference is the global meeting point for the military community. Therefore, SMi are thrilled to bring a diverse range of international military and industry experts to the speaker line-up, ready to explore the latest updates on maritime, air and land safety, including how senior leaders are changing the ways they reduce risks and maximise platform and system safety.
