"We are excited to once again meet with building and facilities professionals at BOMA," said Jesus Ferro, director of marketing at SemaConnect. "Electric vehicle charging is the next big amenity for commercial properties, and we're seeing an increase in inquiries from property managers looking to learn about electric vehicles at their properties. We look forward to helping BOMA members and attendees better serve their tenants and employees in 2019 and beyond."

SemaConnect will be exhibiting the ENERGY STAR certified Series 5 and Series 6 smart charging stations at the show. Both products are designed so commercial properties can easily offer EV charging as an amenity and earn an additional source of revenue from drivers. The Series 5 is designed for designated parking for multifamily and fleet use. The Series 6 is designed for shared parking at multifamily, corporate, and other types of commercial properties. Both offer access and pricing controls, smart card authentication, interactive LED lights, and a sleek form factor. In addition, the Series 6 networked shared station offers interoperability with leading driver programs such as PlugShare, Electrify America, and EVGo. Conference attendees can ask their EV charging questions and see the Series 5 and Series 6 smart charging stations in person at Booth 728 in the Green Pavilion.
