Information and communications technology plays a vital role in the global economy in the modern world due to the excessive reliance on digital systems in all walks of life. The ICT sector has experienced steady growth in the last few years due to the growing demand for the deployment of advanced 5G wireless communication capabilities. The growing demand for advanced wireless communication technology is likely to be a major driver for the ICT sector in the coming years. Developing economies of China, India, and others can play a key role in the expansion of the ICT sector in the coming years, as these countries are likely to focus excessively on the development of wireless network capabilities in the coming years due to the need to remain on par with more developed nations. Government bodies in these countries have remained strongly supportive of advances in the ICT sector in the last few years, which is likely to drive the demand from the sector in the coming years.

The growing demand for advanced artificial intelligence (AI) capabilities in the industrial and other sectors is also likely to be a major driver for the global ICT sector in the coming years. AI is being increasingly used in applications such as predictive analytics, speech recognition, machine learning, and sensory systems. Known as “connected augmented intelligence”, this field relies on the accumulation of vast human-driven data and digital analysis to calculate the statistical possibilities in a given scenario and provide the best forecasts. The increasing use of data-driven decision making in the corporate and industrial sectors is thus likely to remain a major driver for the ICT sector in the coming years.
