ACA designations include collection industry professional, credit and collection compliance professional, credit and collection compliance officer, and credit and collection compliance attorney. "Additional education opportunities afforded by ACA International, meanwhile, include, for example, core curriculum studies and Professional Practice Management System® certification," explains Mihoulides.

The debt recovery agency is also accredited by the Florida Office of Financial Regulation, based on North Congress Avenue in West Palm Beach. "State government office the Florida Office of Financial Regulation provides regulatory oversight for Florida's financial services providers," Mihoulides explains. The Florida Office of Financial Regulation reports directly to the Financial Services Commission.

Credit Counsel, Inc. has served clients both nationally and internationally for over 20 years. Owing to a combination of competitive rates, a commitment to quality service, and a courteous approach to doing business, the company prides itself on offering a standard of care which is second to none, according to Mihoulides.

Lastly, he touches on Credit Counsel's affiliation with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. "An agency of the United States government, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau is responsible for consumer protection within the financial sector," says Mihoulides.

"They regulate the provision of consumer financial products and services under federal financial laws," he adds, wrapping up, "and both educate and empower consumers to make well-informed
