Latest update Related Domain (ICT Industry) -

Information communications and technology (ICT) comprises components, infrastructure, and technology related to computing. The birth of the Internet and its subsequent proliferation which sparked the dot com era has driven the ICT sector. The shift to the online space for relevant information has led to major companies clamoring for space. Targeted Ads and banners have accounted for customers and led to high revenues for the same.

Inclination towards digitization has pushed the evolution of telecommunication networks. Easy availability of smartphones and tablets have made telecom service providers offer services ranging from 1G to 4G. The latest iteration of the communication protocol makes it possible for users to communicate via video calls. Fast network speeds have given way to video conferencing and distance learning. Corporations and enterprises are capitalizing on this trend to gain clients globally and provide round-the-clock services. In addition, 5G is being tested in selective cities and gaining adoption rapidly.
