Latest update Related Domain (Aerospace & Defense Industry) -

The global scenario for aerospace and defense industry is expected to capture a growth trajectory in the coming years owing to the mounting commercial aircraft production and a hefty defense spending by governments across the globe. The aircraft order backlog is at its highest, within the commercial aerospace sector, leading to burgeoning growth in the global industry as a whole. Rising demand for next generation, fuel-efficient aircraft is driving the industry exponentially. Manufacturers are anticipated to expand their scale of production, leading to a fast-paced growth of the industry in itself.

However, these manufacturers could witness some hurdles in their expansion activities over the next few years. Supply chains may face interruptions due to a sudden surge in demand for raw materials. On the other hand, suppliers may struggle to match the demand for commercial and defense aerospace material in a short span, leading to inconsistencies. These factors can pose as major hinderances in the market growth in the forthcoming years. To effectively navigate through this situation, manufacturers and suppliers need to come up with a strategic plan considering all possible scenarios and devising a way around them.
