"The powerful health benefits of Matcha tea have been well documented," states Uchiyama. "We are proud to say that our tea can produce many of the benefits of prescription medication, without the terrible side effects."

What sets Minister's Morning apart from the competition, however, is the modern flare in which they produce their Matcha powder. The company's tea is completely organic, pesticide free, and run in a highly efficient, family run factory. Each bundle of Matcha Powder is packaged with the highest quality materials for ultimate freshness.

"Though we follow the authentic Japanese method for processing tea leaves, we're proud to add this unique, modern twist," says Uchiyama. "We also inspect every tea leaf during the entire process to ensure quality and flavor."

Additionally, grown on a farm situated in the northern mountains of Hamamatsu, Japan, each tea leaf is grown on the bushes of green tea plants and kept under shade for a 3 week period before harvesting. This process dramatically increases the amount of Chlorophyll in the Matcha leaves, which, in turn, creates the beautiful green color of Matcha tea.
