The food and beverage sector has been an integral part of human life and economy since the dawn of civilization and beyond. In ancient times, clans that controlled the food resources held the power and became the target for everyone around them, as food resources were valued highly. The very birth of agriculture indicates the significant power the food and beverage sector holds over human activities and the intimate link between the development of the food and beverage sector and human behavior. In modern times, the food and beverage sector has become a key issue due to the growing global population, which has increased the overall demand for food and driven up the demands placed on the agriculture sector. Growing urbanization has also played a key role in the growth of the food and beverage sector in recent years, with the high disposable income of consumers in urban regions proving crucial in terms of manufacturers prioritizing certain types of food and beverages.
