

Christian French Shakes & Stirs on Intoxicating New Single "hungover sunday"

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA, July 12, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Attracting both 1.5 million monthly listeners on Spotify and receiving widespread acclaim, 22-year-old alternative pop singer-songwriter Christian French heats up summer with a brand new single entitled "hungover sunday."

Emanating sweetly stoned soul from the tail end of the weekend, "hungover sunday" slinks forward on softly plucked clean guitar between pillow-talk confessions: "I drank too much and I feel kind of funny. I can't get up. I'd rather do nothing with you girl."

It proves intoxicating, inimitable, and irresistible all at once—just like everything he does.

The single arrives on the heels of "Come Around" his collaboration with Hoodie Allen. In less than two weeks, it impressively clocked over 1.3 million Spotify streams and counting.

Additionally, his last solo single "head first" continues to close in on 1 million Spotify streams in addition to garnering universal praise. Billboard dubbed it, "bouncy," and Atwood Magazine claimed, "With a mesmerizing and soothing vocal timbre combined with story driven lyrics fans from across the whole world are grasping to the music and French's message."

"hungover sunday" hints at more to come from Christian soon, like his upcoming EP and first headlining tour - both titled: bright side of the moon. Tickets On-Sale NOW

Be on the lookout for more surprises! Especially if you're in the Los Angeles area - Christian is hosting a Hungover Sunday Brunch on July 21st. More details coming soon.

For now, enjoy the best sort of musical hangover with Christian French.
