Banks, financial institutes, retail business, e-commerce, financial institutes, telecommunication and healthcare are among the several large-scale domains that use such service to drive business. However, several factors such as ongoing trade tension between China and U.S., sociopolitical instability in the Middle East and Brexit uncertainty can have a negative influence on the market in the near future. Also, limited resource remains a primary growth deterrent for the market as it undermines growth potential.

Advanced counties in North America and Europe are at a better position to tackle such issue owing to faster market assessment capacity. In Europe, countries such as the U.K., Germany, Netherlands, among others are key markets for such services. In North America, the U.S. remain the top business destination for market players. Countries such as China, Japan, South Korea and India present significant market opportunities. In the Middle East, the market is expected to growth significantly in CGG counties. This is primarily owing to increased focus on economic diversification. Non-oil investment has grown consistently in the region, which is viewed as a positive market indicator.
