

Business Education Curriculum at EEACS Preparing Students for the Workforce

The charter school's unique business education curriculum has garnered widespread praise.

ALLENTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA, UNITED STATES, August 20, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Middle school and high school students at Executive Education Academy Charter School in Allentown are gaining valuable insights into today's workforce. The charter school's innovative business education curriculum features hands-on learning opportunities, internships, externships, and career mentors.

Executive Education Charter School in Allentown offers a unique business education curriculum.

Students are trained in the basics of business, including financial administration, technology, risk management, marketing, and investment strategies. Field experience for middle schoolers and internships for high schoolers help students gain a deeper understanding of today's business climate and needs.

Over three dozen local businesses and nonprofits are partnered with the school.

"We are thankful for the community organizations that have devoted time, resources, and education to our students," says Robert Lysek, founder and CEO of the Lehigh Valley charter school. "They're experiencing opportunities outside of the classroom that they may not otherwise have had."
