

"Public Charge" Rule Is a Callous Public Policy Choice that Exacerbates Poverty, Inequality and Hardship

National Diaper Bank Network Issues Statement Opposing Changes to "Public Charge" Rule

NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, UNITED STATES, August 12, 2019

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The National Diaper Bank Network has issued the following statement in response to announced changes in the "public charge" rule impacting immigrants to the U.S.

National Diaper Bank Network

"By redefining the 'public charge' rule, the current administration continues its attack on programs that support law-abiding families and their ability to access the basic necessities needed to live, thrive and contribute in the US. Forcing families to choose between their American dream or health care, food, and housing, endangers the well-being of legal immigrants and their children, many of whom are US citizens."

Without government resources available to them, more people will be forced to turn to charitable organizations to get food, diapers, period supplies, and other basic necessities."

National Diaper Bank Network

"This callous public policy choice exacerbates poverty, inequality, and hardship. Without government resources available to them, more people will be forced to turn to charitable organizations to get food, diapers, period supplies, and other basic necessities. The expected increase in people seeking help will further strain the limited resources of nonprofits and their ability to meet the needs of the communities they serve. This policy moves our country backwards, hurting children, families, and communities. Instead, we need to invest in common-sense solutions that enable families to thrive and live full, productive lives."
