The food & beverage industry always enjoy an upward trajectory as they come under the basic necessity category. Economies had risen and perished due to the impacts cast by this industry. Presently, the domain is all set to progress further due to the immense pressure from burgeoning population that has crossed 7 billion mark. However, agricultural fields and grazing grounds are getting depleted to accommodate the booming population. It has triggered innovation, so that, less ground can produce more. Also, the lifestyle curve for the most is witnessing a growth that is poles apart from the previous generations. Due to urbanization and industrial surges, people are becoming sedentary and are going through several lifestyle transformations. This has spurred a consumer-centric approach to catering food to people. That is on-the-go food and ready-to-cook categories. On the other hand, these two newly developed segments are getting amply backed by innovations in packaging.
