The necessity and reliance for heavy construction equipment in the world has increased with the size and complexity of the construction projects. The expansion of computerized heavy construction equipments for excavating, earthmoving, and lifting has taken place over the last two centuries. If the requirement for equipments doesn't exist to perform a necessary task; they are designed and built. To achieve these goals, the heavy construction equipment producers have become very receptive to market requirements and response from users. Hence, the design improvement of heavy construction equipment is motivated by the demands of the user market. The infrastructure growth initiatives of the government are also projected to boost the equipment manufacturing industry. Moreover, the governments around the world are expected to accelerate the incentive packages extended to the equipment industry to drive the infrastructural growth throughout all levels. The stimulus would additionally increase and reinforce the public-private partnership while fuelling economic development.
