Orthopedic Market - 2019-2025

Orthopedic Market 2019

Report Description:

An orthopedic implant is a medical device that is meant for replacing a missing joint or bone for proper support to the affected bone. The medical implant is primarily made using the stainless steel and titanium alloys for providing greater strength, and the plastic coating that is done on it can perform as manual artificial cartilage.

The biggest market scenario in the year 2017 was spine devices, hip, and knee reconstruction implants, and trauma fixation. Market scenarios for these are mature and established. Here the growth is primarily driven by the enduring international mass and consequent growing occurrence of diseases that mostly affects the aged groups.
