PUNE, INDIA, August 26, 2019
/EINPresswire.com/ --

Paper is a precious ecological commodity. Rapidly declining forests have compelled us to use it in a more sustainable way. This socio-economic effort has given rise to a thriving Global Waste Paper Recycling Market. The process of recycling this declining commodity involves combining used paper with water and chemicals to create a mixture which is then heated and broken down into a mush of cellulose called pulp. It is finally cleaned, de-inked, bleached, mixed with water and dried to produce recycled paper.

A report by Global Info Research titled - "Global Waste Paper Recycling Market 2019 By Manufacturers, Regions, Type and Application, forecast to 2024" provides crucial market insight into the thriving market of recycled paper. The worldwide market for Waste Paper Recycling is expected to grow at a Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR) of roughly 3.0% over the next five years. The total market value will thus reach US$49.90 billion in 2024, rising significantly from US$ 41.70 billion in 2019 as per the report.
