The introduction of flexible consumption models, services and solutions can be easily modified according to the organization's requirements. Because of this companies will no longer have to buy complex technologies and acquire limited results. It has been noted that the longer companies use flexible consumption models-based technologies, their priority behind the usage of this technology changes from reduced costs to accelerated innovation. The trend of cloud-based flexible consumption is extremely apparent in large software companies that have started integrating artificial intelligence in their cloud-based enterprise software.
