Introduction

Global Softwood Market

The term "softwood" refers to the range of trees which can be used for the preparation of furniture and houses. Majorly three main trees are used for the development of the products. Namely, pine, spruce and cedar. The wood from these trees is used extensively for the preparation of furniture or even houses. The lumber used cannot be used directly in houses or furniture. The wood goes through a series of chemical treatment to ensure that the timber stands tall in all climatic conditions.

The global softwood market is booming, and a lot many people prefer to build houses of wood. One of the primary reasons for building an entire house of timber is that the wood brings out the artistic touch and provides a holistic ambience in the house. The softwood industry is heavily dependent on the construction industry. As the need for more homes rises, the demand for softwood increases too.

The global softwood industry is crossed a significant milestone in the year 2018. Based on extensive research and considering historical data, the industry is bound to grow at a compound annual growth rate of xx per cent and is expected to reach a significant number by the year 2024.
