The food & beverage sector is expected to make overarching changes with food & beverage manufacturers shifting to the health consciousness trend. Public awareness of low-calorie foods and inclination towards their health has pushed the need for health and wellness programs. Diet has been the major cause of absenteeism which can cause productivity losses as well as high risk of heart attacks, cardiovascular disease, stroke, and hypertension. For instance, corporate wellness programs offered by CampMinder contain freshly cut vegetables and fruits for employees which are delivered on a daily basis.

Inclination towards delectable foods and changing taste buds of consumers has highlighted the need for local and regional flavors. Food and beverage manufacturers have launched indigenous drinks concocted with the local taste which appeals to consumers. In addition, preparation of baked foods with customized flavors and ingredients has culminated in driving sales numbers exponentially. Introduction of low-calorie foods as well as inclusion of sugar substitutes devoid of artificial ingredients have attracted customers.
