Time and time again, real estate has been one of the highest yields and safest investments an investor can make over the long term. Market research has shown that rental income grows with property values, offering appropriate investment returns at any entry point. When market values fluctuate, rental income historically continues to increase. As an investor, you put 20% down, and your tenants put down the next 80%. It is almost like buying property at an 80% discount.

The demand for residential rental space continues to stay high. Vacancy rates are consistently low for rental housing. According to Forbes, rents increased by nearly 5% in 2018. The demand for rental housing is outweighing supply. Thus, Luxe London Society is highly desirable for real estate investors looking for safe investments.
