

Diamonds in the Arizona Desert

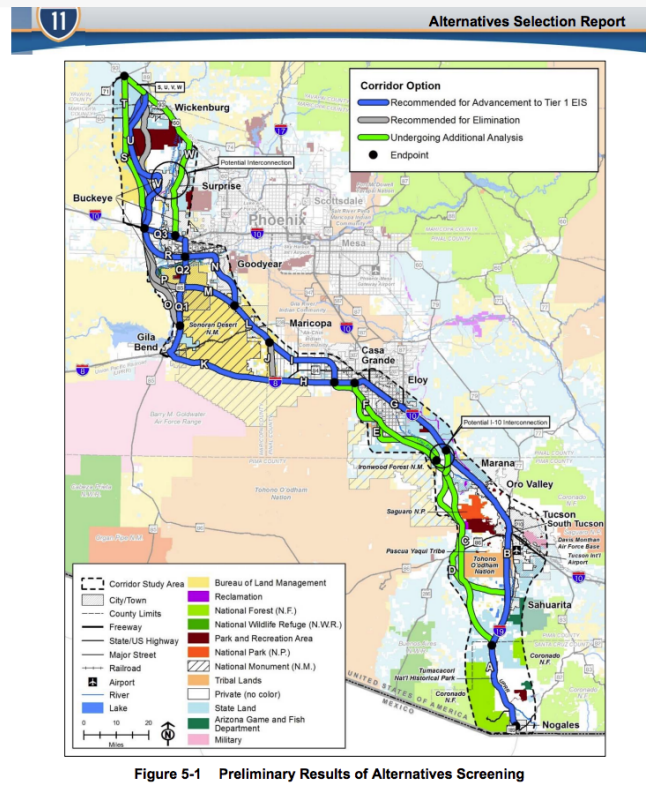

Land purchases in Tonopah Arizona have created Diamonds in the Desert

PHOENIX, ARIZONA, UNITED STATES, September 16, 2019 / EINPresswire.com/ -- More precious than gold and within the reach of those wise enough to grasp it, Tonopah Arizona has proven to increase in value far beyond the speculations of the past of it being just land. Tonopah is located a short distance from another growing Arizona city, Buckeye, Arizona and not far from where Bill Gates shocked the world announcing the $80 million purchase of land near the city of Tonopah, Arizona, in order to build the nation's first high-tech city, Belmont. Tonopah, is now being called 'Diamond City' by Joe Dodani, land and commercial real estate guru of Tonopah and the surrounding area for 15 years with over 200 land transactions in Arizona in his portfolio.

Since the day then governor of Arizona Jan Brewer and Nevada governor Brian Sandoval's announcement of the interstate 11 between Las Vegas and Phoenix, it created opportunities Tonopah, Arizona never dreamed of, from warehouses distribution centers and major Arizona California commerce connection stops to it becoming the quintessential location for those looking to be near the proposed 'Smart City' named by Gates for his 25,000 Acres. In the past, Dodani has provided information on asset preservation of equity, leverage, diversification, and planning on why 30% of portfolios should be invested in raw land and now he and other investors offer the keys to Diamond City.
