With personal grooming becoming the center of focus, make-up – an integral part of women's grooming products is at center-stage too. Make-up brushes are an essential item in the make-up kit used for the application, be it on the face, eyes, lips, etc. Each one of these areas requires a different type of brush depending upon the area to be covered. With the appropriate brush, the make-up blends better into the skin. There are two types of brushes available in the market – with synthetic bristles or the ones made up of natural fibers. Handles come in plastic or wood materials.

Market Segmentation

The global makeup brushes market report segments the market in two ways; through the type of brushes being sold in the market and by application – i.e. the point of sales. The research report has found that China is the biggest producer as raw materials are abundantly available and the labor cost is low. China has enjoyed a huge market share of around 45% in 2017. China famous for its low-cost productions produces the make-up brushes at a lower price level. However, this came out to be resistance to its global market share growth which declined to 37.4%. Not only in production, but China is ahead of many countries in consumption too due to the large population; market share being 31.1%.
