Industry News:

The rising home delivery services are likely to have a positive impact on the consumer goods industry. Be its meal kit services, Amazon Prime, or any newly-introduced grocery delivery services; consumers highly prefer to have their products delivered at their doorsteps. The growing on-demand home delivery will impose additional pressure on traditional retailers to restructure their sales model, including evolving their merchandising strategy to reduce physical floor space. With digitization spreading across industries, the consumer goods industry is also likely to be affected. Companies involved in consumer goods have aligned technology in efficient and creative ways, which is likely to influence a customer's path to purchase and optimize customer engagement.
