Industry News:

September 03, 2019, Nike has partnered with Siri and has launched to Adapt Huaraches with a self-lacing motor, which can be monitored using Siri, Apple's digital voice assistant. The Apple Devices are paired with Adapt Huaraches and can control their pressure on toes by voice commands. The motor on the smart shoes is controlled through the Nike Adapt app on the Apple Watch of iPhone. The latest sneakers are the latest addition from Nike which features the same neoprene supportive exoskeleton of original Air Huaraches, continuing the brand with technological advances. The sneaker consists of two LED lights that change color while the user tinkers with the settings on the app. It has two preset modes, Chill and Moves that allow the sole and body of the shoe to work according to the situation. The modes are dependent on the foot type.
